

FORMAL OPENING OF THE OLYMPIC GAMES

IMPRESSIVE SPECTACLE MARKS
BEGINNING OF EVENTS AT STOCKHOLM STADIUM.

FIRST RACES ARE HELD

Honors Are Evenly Divided in the Heats of the 100 Meter and 800
Meter Races Today.

Stockholm, Sweden, July 6.—The inauguration of the Olympic games today provided a spectacle which probably has not ever been equaled in all the history of athletics from the day of the Ancient Greeks. It was not only a beautiful and memorable scene but a solemn ceremony which moved the spectators deeply.

The day was perfect. There was clear blue sky overhead. The great stadium was filled with thirty thousand people of all nationalities. The delicate color of the women's costumes and the bright uniforms of the army officers in themselves made a beautiful picture.

When the members of the royal family entered the royal box and present stood with bared heads and there were loud cheers while a call was blown by a corps of trumpeters sounded far and wide and announced the opening of the games. Then the Swedish national hymn was sung and this was joined in by many of the spectators.

The entry of the athletes into the arena gave the spectators an opportunity for a display of patriotism which each national delegation among the crowd assembled took advantage of with all the power of their lungs. After the delegations of Sweden and Norway and Denmark, the team representing the United States showed the largest body of men in the procession and the stars and stripes were given the heartiest welcome. The little file of three athletes following the flag of Japan, however, got warm applause.

At the head of each delegation marched two stalwart athletes who carried the national flag and a standard bearing the name of the countries which they represented, surrounded by a Grecian laurel wreath. Committeemen in silk hats and frock coats came after the competitors. Some of them were in uniforms, some bare-legged and bare-armed. All of the delegations then assembled on the track on the green oval facing the royal box with the standard bearers holding on high the colors of the various nations directly opposite the king.

Games Formally Opened.
When the inaugural ceremonial of the international committee which includes representatives of all nations assembled on the field in front of the massed competitors, a big male choir was formed at the far end of the stadium and sang a hymn while several bands played. Following prayer, Gustav the sixth rose and formally declared the Olympic games opened.

A group of trumpeters in medieval costumes stationed on the tower on the south end of the stadium sounded a blast which was responded to by another group of trumpeters on the tower at the opposite end. The crown prince waving his hat led three sounding cheers and the march of the athletes passed the reviewing stand at once began.

As soon as this was ended a body of 200 white clad Swedish gymnasts ran onto the field and performed a number of spectacular evolutions. After the men a group of Swedish women gave an exhibition of exercises and apparatus including the jumping horse and the trapeze. The culmination of the spectacle was the march of the athletes before the royal box.

IMPORTANT MATTERS IN POLITICAL LINE

Are Scheduled for Next Week, Among Them Being a Conference of Democratic Leaders.

Washington, D. C., July 6.—President Taft is scheduled to return to Washington Monday from his brief outing at Beverly. It is expected that some time during the week the subcommittee of nine, appointed from the Republican national committee, will wait on the President to learn his wishes regarding the conduct of his campaign.

The week will probably see a conference of some of the Democratic national leaders to discuss preliminaries incident to the beginning of the presidential campaign. The third-party movement will manifest itself in the holding of conferences in a number of the states to organize in the interest of the Roosevelt presidential candidacy.

Republicans of Iowa are to meet in State convention in Des Moines Wednesday to name candidates for supreme court judges and adopt a platform.

The national convention of the Prohibition party for the nomination of candidates for President and Vice President will be called to order Wednesday in Atlantic City. Among those expected to be on the ticket are Dr. Aaron S. Watkins of Ohio, Francis E. Baldwin of New York, Eugene W. Chaffin of Arizona, Andrew J. Houston of Texas and Madison F. Larkin of Pennsylvania.

The Duke of Connaught, accompanied by Princess Patricia, is due to arrive in Winnipeg Tuesday to begin his tour of the Canadian West. On the day following his arrival in the western metropolis His Royal Highness will officiate at the opening of the Canadian Industrial Exhibition.

Thursday is the day fixed for the general elections in the Province of Saskatchewan. A spirited campaign is in progress and both parties appear confident of victory. The result of the election will be of more than local interest as it is expected to afford an indication of whether there has been any change of views on the part of the people of western Canada on the subject of reciprocity with the United States.

The most important events on the program of the Olympic games in Stockholm will be decided during the week. These events will include all of the principal athletic fixtures in which the Americans will take part. Thursday will see the finals in the standing high jump, the discus throw, the 400-meter and team race. On the following day will take place the great Marathon race, in which American hopes to repeat her victory achieved at London two years ago.

The convention calendar of the week will be unusually well filled. Among the most important gatherings will be the conventions of the National Education Association, in Chicago; the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, in Portland, Ore.; the National Municipal League, in Los Angeles; the United States League of Local Building and Loan Associations, in Atlantic City; the International Association of Chiefs of Police, in Toronto; the Fire Marshals' Association of North America, in Detroit; and the biennial congress of the Norwegian Singers' Association of America, which is to be held in Fargo, N. D.

QUESTION OF TRUTH AND NEWSPAPERS

Prominent Newspaper Men Will Discuss
Matters at Madison July
29 to Aug. 1.

Madison, Wis., July 6.—To find out whether or not the newspapers of the country are free to tell the truth, and if not, to find some remedy for existing conditions, the Extension Division of the University of Wisconsin has called a conference of newspaper men, to be held in Madison, from July 29 to August 1.

Such men as Melville E. Stone, manager of the Associated Press; William J. Bryan; William Allen White; Norman Hanged, editor of Collier's Weekly; Charles L. Grasty, of the Baltimore Sun; and Fremont Older, of the San Francisco Bulletin, have signified their intention to attend the convention.

Every journalist in the country who is interested in the question is invited to attend. It is planned to have two prominent newspaper men speak at each of the six main sessions, and these addresses will be followed by discussion in which anyone may take part.

That three important things are taking place in modern journalism is pointed out by the Extension Division in issuing the call for the conference. First, the amount of capital required to maintain a newspaper is constantly increasing with the result that newspapers are frequently owned or controlled by men with money rather than with ideas. Second, the returns from advertising are rapidly increasing which results in a greater dependence of the newspaper on the advertiser for its maintenance and a growing endeavor on the part of the advertiser to influence the news and editorial policies of the papers. Third, the newspaper is coming to be an investment and not infrequently it is run merely to serve the business, social or political interests of its owners.

High Schools Attacked.

The report based on investigation conducted in 25 states, declared the system of high school teaching is just where it was 30 years ago, and that this backwardness is due to the plan of high schools to prepare pupils for "colleges and universities rather than for life."

ing That He Would Favor An-

Wolgast maintained that he was not helped to his feet by referee Jack Welch while Rivers lay on the floor being counted out and asserted that Rivers was knocked out and was glad to quit.

FAMOUS RUSSELL WILL CASE AGAIN IN COURT.

Boston, Mass., July 6.—The famous Russell will case is due for another airing in the courts at East Cambridge next week, but owing to the summer vacation season it is thought likely an adjournment of the trial until fall will be agreed upon when the case is called on Monday. In the former trial, which was one of the longest in the history of the Massachusetts courts, the claimant known as "Dakota Dan" was unsuccessful in his efforts to secure a share of the Daniel Russell estate. The new suit was instituted by the North Dakota claimant to establish his identity as the son of Daniel Russell. If successful in establishing his identity as the son of Daniel Russell, the claimant, naturally would renew his efforts to secure a share of the Russell fortune.

Democratic Candidate Says It Lies
At Heart of High Cost of Living Problem.

Sea Girt, N. J., July 6.—Governor Wilson expressed his opinion today that the high cost of living is the burning issue of the hour and that "at its heart lies the high protective tariff." It is an issue, he said, which he expects to cover fully in his speech of acceptance and in every campaign speech he makes "undoubtedly the tariff is at the center of it," he said, referring to the high cost of living. "The thing is so interlarded on public questions of all kinds that the conclusion is inevitable. The tariff lies at the heart of it all. A great many of the trust questions of the time have arisen out of the tariff. The minute you go out from the center—the high tariff—you get into the trust question and others."

TAFT FAVORS HILLES TO HEAD COMMITTEE

President Will Not Insist on Secretary's Appointment if Committee Members Are Opposed.

Beverly, Mass., July 6.—Although President Taft has favored the appointment of his secretary, C. D. Hilles, as chairman of the republican national committee, he will not insist upon this selection if members of the national committee who will meet him at the White House Monday, hold different views.

In addition to Mr. Hilles, Wm. Barnes Jr. of New York and former Representative Herbert Parsons of the same state, have been prominently mentioned. Objections have been raised against both these leaders just as they have been raised against Mr. Hilles and it was said today the president was inclined to leave the matter largely to the sub-committee.

MCCARTHY SAYS PEOPLE SHOULD BE INSTRUCTED IN ART OF LAWMAKING

Madison, Wis., July 6.—Every citizen should be able to understand the way and the whys of law making, and in order that this may be possible lawmaking must be stepped to its present complexity, says Dr. Charles McCarthy, head of the Wisconsin Legislative Reference Library, in a bulletin published by the Extension Division of the University of Wisconsin.

"How complex our law is today in America is shown by the fact that the ordinary legislator has very little conception of the law," writes Dr. McCarthy. "If the laws are so complicated that laymen cannot understand them and it takes a great hierarchy of judges and jurists who struggle with each other and wrangle over the fine points of the game, then, sooner or later that law is going to be used as an instrument of oppression."

"The people are governed by rules either made by the courts or our legislatures. The people must begin to make a study of those rules, and if they are so mysterious that the ordinary man cannot understand them, we must substitute other rules for them. We must at least make an effort to have a wider comprehension of all our laws lest the time shall come when the people, impatient of restraint and not understanding the basis of legislation, will do by violence that which ought to be done by logical deliberation built upon a thorough knowledge of the basis of all laws."

"We have been too prone in the past to allow our laws to belong to a certain class—men who are supposed to be learned in the law. These men have often abused the trust reposed in them. And so, if after all, law merely springs from the people, why should there be this mysterious about it? The safety of a republic depends upon the knowledge of each independent voter. If that knowledge is great the state is so much the safer because of it."

TO CONTINUE FIGHT

Rebel Leader Has Ordered Bulk of Army to Pacific Coast in Hope of Securing Supplies.

Orozo Headquarters, July 6.—General Pasqual Orozo today ordered the bulk of the rebel army westward from here toward the state of Sonora and Pacific coast towns where it is hoped to get ammunition from Japan and continue the revolution. Guaymas will be the first seaport which the rebel columns will attempt to take.

El Paso, Texas, July 6.—Only 3,500 men are estimated as the remnant of the Mexican rebel army today. Desertions because of lack of food and money and the federal triumph have greatly reduced the troops within the last week.

General Pasqual Orozo today was expected at the new rebel capital at Juarez to launch further plans for the continuation of the revolution. Though the plans of gorilla warfare originally called for the division of the rebel army into detachments of 150 men, General Orozo now has ordered that each column shall contain not less than 500 men to dominate the part of the country detailed to it.

Already the rebel invasion of the state of Sonora has been begun. Nearly 1000 men under General Emilio Canto are marching on Casagrande on the Mexican Northwestern Road toward Navisone one of the mountain passes leading into Sonora. En route from Acgudritza, opposite Douglas, Ariz., to the south of them is a federal force of 9,000 men under General Sanjines who will make his headquarters at Colonia Morelos near the Sonora state line and fifty miles south of the international border.

LA FOLLETTE TAKES PASSIVE POSITION?

Senator's Attitude Toward Presidential Campaign Unannounced
But May Support Wilson

Madison, Wis., July 6.—It is said that Senator La Follette may take no part in the presidential campaign. Walter L. Homer who has been at his home at Mondova, Wis., since the Chicago convention, went to Washington yesterday to confer with the senator regarding the latter's activity in the campaign, with special reference to his attitude with reference to Woodrow Wilson's candidacy. Whether La Follette will support Wilson is a question soon to be determined, it is understood, but the course which finds ready belief here is that La Follette will take only a passive position. La Follette is expected home in about ten days.

INSIST ON STANDARD SIZE FOR CRANBERRY BARRELS.

Madison, Wis., July 6.—The Wisconsin department of weights and measures, having learned that certain cranberry growers are accustomed to order from coopers, barrels that are a little short of the standard size, is sending a circular letter to cranberry growers and coopers manufacturing cranberry barrels calling attention to the provisions of the law. The letter also says:

"It has also come to the knowledge of this department that certain growers in Wisconsin have recently been placing orders with coopers for short barrels for the ensuing year. We are firmly convinced that when barrels are made a trifle short, it is done with the intention of having the same masquerade as standard barrels. The department will use every means in its power to enforce the law relating to the standard cranberry barrel."

Commissioner J. Q. Emery has gone to Seattle, Wash., to attend the convention of the National Association of Dairy and Food Commissioners, at which he will lead a discussion on one of the topics on the program.

Bright Conundrum.

The following conundrum in a German paper is worth repeating, for, though depending on a play of words, it is good in either language. Why is a slate like matrimony? Because young girls reckon on both.

FAMILIAR BEAUTY OF ROCK RIVER SCENERY

It is more than seventy years since the early white settlers of the Rock river valley admired the winding silvery waters which flowed unobstructed to mingle with the great Mississippi, were satisfied with the beauty of the wooded knolls, and the stretches of fertile prairie, and determined to cast their lot in this garden spot of the northwest territory. Since that time the hand of man has not been diminished but more and more have become enamoured with has changed and pristine beauty of the Rock valley but its attractiveness is still enduring and its shady banks and bubbling springs that pour their waters into its bosom all along its course, have offered refreshment for hundreds of travelers seeking repose from arduous labors.

When the white man first came the Indian's bark canoe was the only craft that plied the stream. Navigation was infrequent then and was carried on out of necessity or for purely business purposes. The pleasureable features were not recognized largely because there was little time for recreation and because one did not need to travel out of a crowded city to breathe pure air and enjoy the natural surroundings.

As settlements sprung up following years of enterprise and as the territory contiguous to the river became dotted with prosperous farms, people had time for pleasant excursions and the Rock's banks were alluringly inviting.

Since the time when the early settlers enjoyed picnics at which the entire community gathered, until the present time when numerous power-propelled boats supply delightful means of transportation to the beauty spots above the city, the Rock river camping grounds have been popular.

As a resort place it has been attractive to the man of modest means who finds it impossible to take long trips to the more popular lakes but who is satisfied with the quiet which the camping places by the Rock offer so delightfully. Consequently there have been no palatial summer homes erected, but rather rustic shelters, modestly termed cottages and often merely tents have been the dwelling places of the Rock river resorters. With the advent of the automobile and other means of rapid transportation, the popularity of the river has not been diminished but more and more have become enamoured with the beauties of the home stream.

To those familiar with the course of the Rock river above Janesville, and there are few Janesville citizens who have not traveled the distance between here and Indian Ford many times, no elaborate description is needed of the many attractive spots. Some critics disagree as to the stretch of greatest beauty but it is safe to say that between this city and the Four Mile bridge one may gain a fairly good idea of Rock river scenery.

Even the left bank as one leaves the city by river with its steep incline and abundant foliage serving as a screen for half a mile or more to the Northwestern tracks, possesses a certain attraction which seems different from ordinary river banks. The real beauty of the stream is seen just before rounding the curve toward Crystal Springs. On the right hand are the stoney bluffs shielding the Pratt quarries and on the other hand is the low level flat covered with coloring of growing crops, stretching back to meet a high range of hills to the south and up the river ending abruptly in the high abutting wall of limestone on what was formerly the Schoof farm. Directly across from this veritable precipice are Crystal and Burr's Springs, the waters of which, and the latter especially are famed all over the country.

There is no more familiar spot on the river than the grounds surrounding these two springs. On the Burr property, as is well known, there has been erected this season one of the most modern bottling works in the country and the waters of this bubbling fountain will be distributed to the ends of the world by the Hawaiian Water Company which is now ready to operate on a large scale. The erection of this bottling plant marks an epoch in the history of Rock river as a resort and camping place.

Opinions vary as to the probable result but there can be little doubt that this enterprise will eventually boost the river property.

Above the grounds of the Jjiawatha company the river bends toward the north and around the curve with the high bluffs of the Shoemaker farm on the right and the low flat of the Three Mile creek bottom on the left is another beauty spot. Beyond can be seen the Four Mile bridge. This is really a historic place and in the early days the building of a city at this point was seriously considered. In fact a dam was constructed and the old race-way is still in evidence cutting off a narrow fringe of land from the right bank just before rounding the curve to the northward.

Just before passing the bridge the banks on either side are less steep. On the left is the Parish property with beautiful groves of oak trees and the right there is a green that gradually running back to a high hill.

JULY--THE BARGAIN MONTH

By W. C. Kenaga.

A month in which those wise enough to read advertisements profit handsomely.

This month of July will be the banner bargain month, for the late spring and slowly awakening summer worked not only to the disadvantage of the farmer and retailer, but to the manufacturer as well.

We wore our winter under and outer clothes later than usual—spring weights were as active as fresh fruit on an overstocked market. The manufacturer this year held the bag. Now he's let go—he's turning his clothing, his shoes, his summer goods of all kinds over to the retailer, who will not only sell their surplus stock at big reductions, but will be offering spick, snap, new things right out of the packing cases at a fraction of their ordinary cost to us.

Let's profit by the July sales as advertised in The Gazette.

EDGERTON

Edgerton, July 6.—The board of review was in session all day yesterday and the work was very laborious on account of changing the method of assessing. Both the assessor and the board have endeavored to equalize all assessments and there was a raise of about 29 per cent in all valuations. It was discovered that the city will suffer a considerable decrease in valuation through the injustice of that progressive piece of legislation known throughout the state as the income tax law. All money which heretofore a tax was paid upon and went direct into Edgerton city treasury will now be collected by the state and the city will get its share less the slice the state takes for doing the city's work. It cannot be reasonably expected that the progressive machine will be able to corral near the amount that local officials could.

An energetic baseball fan who is good at figures, has just figured it out that Ty Cobb and Larry Lajoie, two of the bright stars of the American league, get $60 each for every game they play. Each has a salary of $9,000 a year and participates in about 150 games per season. They play an average of two hours in each game. That figures 50 cents a minute while in actual play. And yet some of these star baseballists complain about the high cost of living!

Jack Johnson is a wise man to retire next September. He has vowed that he will quit the ring on Labor day. Jack is now thirty-four years of age. That is about the age that fighters begin to slump. By pulling out now the colored champion saves himself from the humiliation of a defeat, which might come in the near future.

The (Alte) Murphy fight, driven from Daly City, by the trustees, will be pulled off in San Francisco on Saturday afternoon, Aug. 3. The fighters have agreed to weigh in at 123 pounds at noon, Jack Welch will referee.

A noticeable feature of baseball tactics in the big leagues this year is the revival of the old practice of hitting at the first good ball pitched. For some years back managers have declared it a "boob trick" to hit at the first ball. The idea was that the twirler should be tried out and be made to work as much as possible. Evidently this idea is exploding.

It never was much of an idea, anyway. It might work all right on a weak pitcher. But when a pitcher is going good we fail to see the sense of a better permitting a good chance to hit the ball slip away from him. The new policy as might be expected, is giving highly satisfactory results.

Infielder Ray Morgan is one of the most dangerous hitters on Griffith's team. Lacking experience, he is far from being a finished ball player, but he comes through with timely hits, and that counts for a good deal. To date, no pitcher in the league has been able to fool Morgan to any great extent.

An ocean-to-ocean motorcycle relay to be pulled off late this summer is being planned by the Federation of American Motorcyclists. The proposed route is from San Francisco to New York and passes through Chicago and Cleveland. Clubs along the route have been asked for volunteers to complete the relay.

The Fort Wayne team in the Central league is playing the role of the dark horse. It continues traveling the pace it has been going for the past few weeks the present big four—Dayton, Youngstown, Springfield and Erie—will find it a real contender for pennant honors.

The race continues to attract the attention of fans wherever the standings are published. It would be difficult to say which of the five teams mentioned stands the best show of coping the pennant this fall, but Dayton and Youngstown look the best at this writing.

South Bend and Zanesville are having a merry race for the cellar position.

Neenah, Wis., July 5.—An auto accident which nearly resulted fatally occurred late last night when the auto of Edward Oberweiser and party narrowly escaped drowning in the river when the machine plunged off a bridge.

The steering gear went wrong which caused the accident. Fortunately a barge was moored near the dock which was the means of rescue. Flora Oberweiser was badly injured.

FINDS HIGH PRAISE FOR BABCOCK MILK TEST

Corvallis, Ore., July 6.—That the famous Babcock milk test, invented by Prof. S. M. Babcock of the University of Wisconsin, is one of the best means a rural teacher has of teaching percentage in arithmetic classes, was the declaration made here by Prof. F. L. Kent before the teachers attending the summer school at the Oregon Agricultural College.

Prof. Kent preceded his statement with an actual demonstration of the test with a simple outfit, such as any rural teacher could have on his desk.

"If a cow produces 50 pounds of milk in a day which test 2.6 per cent fat content, her production is 1,350 pounds of fat a day. If the cow gives 42 pounds of milk a day but the test is 3.5 per cent fat content, she will give 1,470 pounds of fat," explained Prof. Kent.

"Carrying the problem out by means of daily records to the end of the month, a cow producing 725 pounds of milk in a month with a test of 3.5 per cent butter fat, will give 25,375 pounds of fat in a month. The problem may be further elaborated by finding the gain in dollars and cents, supposing the value of butter fat on the market is 27 cents a pound. By using the cost of feed, labor involved and other items, further complications and variations of the problem can be made for older pupils."

By making use of such problems as these, which have a direct bearing on farm life, the farmer's attitude toward education can be changed, Prof. Kent believes. A farmer sees more "sense" in concrete examples, and when he finds that his children's arithmetic problems show that his favorite cow is being outdone by a neighbor's, he will gain more respect for "booklearning."

The teaching of the Babcock milk test and its use in arithmetic classes may not only interest the boy and keep him in school longer after he has tired of solving problems in discount and banking subjects in which he has no interest but may benefit the whole community by creating a desire to own only the highest paying, and therefore best bred, dairy cattle.

Unemployed To Discuss Panaceas For Problems.

New York, July 6.—Various problems that are supposed to add thorns to the workman's path through life are to be discussed at a three days' conference which was begun in this city today under the auspices of an organization which manages to exist under the title of the "National Committee of the Unemployed of the National Brotherhood Welfare Association."

The organization is working for the establishment of a national employment bureau, for free transportation for laboring men in pursuit of jobs, and for shorter working hours, a minimum wage scale and insurance against unemployment.

Would Teach Philosophy by Correspondence Method

Madison, Wis., July 5.—The University of Wisconsin has undertaken to teach philosophy through its Extension Division by means of the correspondence study method. Two general courses are now offered but other courses will be offered as soon as a demand is made for them.

The difference between right and wrong and why things may seem right to one person and wrong to another will be one of the subjects taken up in one course. The nature of conscience, and of sense of obligation will also be studied. An effort will likewise be made to determine whether so-called free will is a fact or an illusion and whether such a thing as genuine self-sacrifice is possible. From these questions others will arise such as the relation of moral goodness to happiness and the possibility of morality without religion.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

It matters little where I was born,
Or if my parents were rich or poor;
Whether they shrank from the cold world's scorn,
Or walked in pride of wealth secure;
But whether I live an honest man,
And hold my integrity firm in my clutch,
I tell you, my brother, as plain as I can,
It matters much!

It matters little how long I stay
In a world of sorrow, sin and care;
Whether in youth I am called away,
Or live till my bones and pate are bare;
But whether I do the best I can
To soften the weight of adversity's touch,
On the faded cheek of my fellowman,
It matters much!

It matters little where be my grave,
On the land or on the sea;
By purring brook or 'neath stormy wave,
It matters little or naught to me;
But whether the Angel of Death comes down
And marks my brow with his loving touch,
As one that shall wear the victor's crown,
It matters much!

—New York Observer.

The era of reform, through which the nation is passing, is developing all sorts of theories, and many old time customs, which have long been considered sacred, are abandoned for new experiments. Among the latest is a plan advanced by an eastern college professor, to produce a perfect race of people through the art of scientific breeding.

He claims that if men and women are properly mated, with reference to the highest ideals, that the result would be a generation sound in body, strong in mind and pure in heart, and that disease and crime would soon disappear.

The professor is working out a plan to develop his theories. In the meantime the old order prevails and love, sentiment and passion will continue to be the forces which bring people together and establish the family and the home.

The remark is sometimes heard that "blood tells," and that a child is fortunate who is "well-born." While this may be true, in a measure, it is not consoling to the great mass of humanity, for we come into being without being consulted, and are in no way responsible for the lottery of heredity.

The history of the human family would be incomplete without a starting point, and while the story may be more or less mythical, the fact is generally accepted that God himself established the first home, with but little regard for human weakness or human frailty. It is possible that the modern professor can improve on the plan, but extremely doubtful.

Adam and Eve, the first man and woman to adorn the pages of history, were intensely human. Unlike the animal kingdom, over which they presided, they possessed a conscience and a human will. They know the right, and willed to do the wrong, and God recognized this free moral agency as a choice heritage, by permitting them to choose. The children they raised were not perfect, and the first murder recorded was in the family circle.

Sacred history is an impartial record, and many of its pages are devoted to the family life of God's chosen people. That much of this life was far from ideal, is evident to the most casual reader. The people of those early days were very much like the people of today, and men and women have long since ceased to worry about the accident of birth.

There are some problems connected with life that we do not understand. Some of the nations of the Far East are so poverty-stricken that great multitudes of the people die of starvation before living out half their allotted time, yet they continue to multiply and increase without let or hindrance.

But the author of the little poem had in mind the citizens of this free land of equal opportunity, where every man may be a sovereign, if he will, and where no time is wasted in mourning over the disadvantages of birthright.

If you have ever stood by the track side and watched the horses as they scored for the start, you may have picked a favorite from two or three in the bunch, which seemed to possess every advantage. You follow them down the back stretch to discover at the last quarter that the little roan, which you had failed to notice, is tight pulling to the front. Not very much style, but lots of endurance, and when, a moment later, he passes under the wire, a winner, you are forced to admit that you don't know very much about horses. The little roan belonged to a farmer's boy. If the horse had a pedigree, it was not a matter of record.

The race of life is similar, in some respects. Success is not a matter of breeding; neither is blood a handicap if the man who possesses it realizes that what we take out of life is determined by the investment. Education of whatever brand represents value in proportion to what it cost in the way of toll and sacrifice, and the diploma is the cheapest thing connected with it.

The little niche which we occupy is not very large nor very conspicuous, and yet it is one of a vast colony of habitations which contribute to the weal or woe of the generation through which we are passing.

This little abode, the kingdom of the heart, as well as of the mind, is a sacred precinct, because it is an individual realm, and we can make of it what we will.

Sometimes we wander far afield, and are captivated by the oratory of a Bryan or the statesmanship of a Roosevelt, and our minds are filled with envy until we see the great men collapse, and then we scuttle back to our little dens, like the fiddler crabs on the beach, and with the same feeling of content.

Driving across the country one dark night in November, weary from the long day's journey, the heart was cheered by the lights of the little city in the valley a mile ahead. The streets were brilliant, and from the windows in every home sparkled a welcome. The invisible wires which carried the current were impartial messengers, treating alike the palace and the cottage, and contributing to the general air of good cheer.

The subtle and more intangible current, which connects human lives, and makes all men akin, is the great leveler which destroys cast and makes all blood seem very much alike.

The heart of humanity lies very close to the surface, and in normal condition is ready to respond to every generous impulse. The sentiment contained in the little poem expressed the author's ambition, and the world is growing better because this peculiar brand of ambition is becoming popular.

Not what we profess, but what we possess is the standard of measurement which is demanded. The accident of birth has but little to do with it.

SCRIPTURE

And God spake unto Noah, and to his sons with him, saying,

And, behold, I establish my covenant with you, and with your seed after you;

And with every living creature that is with you, of the fowl, of the cattle, and of every beast of the earth with you; from all that go out of the ark, to every beast of the earth.

And I will establish my covenant with you; neither shall all flesh be cut off any more by the waters of a flood; neither shall there any more be a flood to destroy the earth.

And God said, This is the token of the covenant which I make between me and you and every living creature that is with you, for perpetual generations:

I do set my bow in the cloud, and it shall be for a token of a covenant between me and the earth.

And it shall come to pass, when I bring a cloud over the earth, that the bow shall be seen in the cloud;

And I will remember my covenant which is between me and you and every living creature of all flesh; and the waters shall no more become a flood to destroy all flesh.

And the bow shall be in the cloud; and I will look upon it, that I may remember the everlasting covenant between God and every living creature of all flesh that is upon the earth.

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

By Roy K. Moulton

From the Hickeyville Clarion.

Three life insurance agents are on the trail of Hank Purdy and it doesn't look as though he is going to have time to do much of his farm work this summer.

Anse Frisby says one very superfluous thing in this world to do is to allow your wife to take elocution lessons. He never yet saw a woman who wasn't fluent enough without 'em.

Uncle Ezra Harkins went to sleep back of the stove during the sermon at the Hardshell church Sunday evening and didn't wake up until Monday afternoon. Rev. Hanks says if he tried to wake up all the members of his congregation after church he wouldn't get home himself until midnight, so he lets 'em dream.

The lighting system of Hickeyville was out of commission last Thursday night. Station Agent Jordan forgot to get any oil for the switch lights.

Luke Hanks is putting barbed wire fences all around his place so as his hired man can't sit down. He expects to save a lot of money in that way.

The Hardshell people are thinking of building a new church. All of the seats will be back seats and there will be a brick wall between the choir and the congregation. Let the improvement go on.

Miss Amy Pringle's new skirt is so tight that she has to stand up and eat her meals off'n the mantel.

Constable Ezra Hand is investigating the mysterious disappearance of Anse Frisby's duck pond, which occurred one night last week. It is thought that some culprit who is an enemy of Anse bored a hole in the bottom of the pond and let the water all out.

Getting an Accident Policy.

Accident policies will happen in the best regulated families. The last time we got one it was a very simple matter. After the physical examination, which lasted three hours and a half, we were obliged to fill out a blank answering the following questions:

Where were you born and, if so, how much?

Did your grandfather have fits, and how many? Did he have them frequently or only every five minutes or so?

Do you expect to live until next December, and, if so, what reason have you for doing so?

Were you ever killed before, and, if so, how many times? Please fill

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

BOYS WILL BE BOYS.

Little Sammy Ester of New York ran away from home. A search was made, the newspapers printed the story, and the mother wept for her boy.

Which is nothing new. But in Sammy's case there was a reason. He wanted his hair cut like pa's.

His mother forced him to wear long hair and dressed him in Little Lord Fauntleroy style. Not being that sort of boy, he revolted and ran away.

He turned up in a day or two minus the curls.

His mother knows more now.

There are many ways by which you can make miserable the life of a real boy.

One of them, which is to treat him as if he were a baby, is the refinement of cruelty.

To dress up a manly little fellow in a manner markedly different from that of his fellows and turn him loose among them is to subject the poor boy to a merciless lot of critics.

He becomes a target.

Other boys ask no better fun than to jibe at him in the street vernacular; call him a "sissy boy," pull the curls, blacken his eyes and rub his nose in the dust.

Poor kid.

It is hard enough for a youngster in the republic of Buryville to adapt himself to the democratic treatment accorded its citizens without suffering the handicap put upon him by the tad of a foud and foolish mother.

And the boy who willingly submits to be fussed over and made to pose as a sprig of aristocracy probably has something the matter with him.

Better see the doctor.

If he submits unwillingly and has in him the making of a man better take him down to the corner and leave him there in the midst of a few active hustlers of his own size and age.

He may come back whipped and crying, but demanding that he be dressed like other boys. Put plain togs on him and turn him loose again.

He may come back whipped, but not crying, or he may come back disgraced, but victor. Anyway—

Boys will be boys, not babies. When Sammy protests his hair ought to be cut short better send him to the barber shop.

Training.

"It's Often So."
"I hope, sir," said the minor actor, "that I filled my part competently."
"That is a consideration of no importance," replied the star. "Like the other members of the supporting cast, you are here simply to provide a comparison that will make the audience appreciate the excellence of my acting."

RELEASED FROM PRISON FOLLOWING A HEARING.

Neenah Man Serving a Term For Second Degree Murder, Pardoned by Governor.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Madison, Wis., July 6.—Upon condition that he abstain from intoxicating liquor and report every three months to his brother-in-law, F. M. Leavens, John Mathews of Neenah was pardoned from the state penitentiary by Gov. McGovern yesterday afternoon, following a hearing. Mathews was serving a fourteen-year sentence upon his plea of guilty of murder in the second degree, and his counsel, John P. Klavin, of Oshkosh, contended that manslaughter in a lesser degree would have been a more righteous verdict. It was set forth that Mathews is failing in health, that he has served three years already and that the ends of justice have already been served.

While intoxicated, Mathews shot Charles Solomon, his friend, a member of a party which in fun had a can of paint for which Mathews was searching. Solomon died from a gunshot wound received in a struggle to wrest a revolver from Mathews.

INSTRUCT DELEGATES FOR MOEHLLENPAH AT COUNTY CONVENTION

By Unanimous Vote, Rock County Delegation Instructed To Vote For Clinton in as Lieutenant Governor.

By an unanimous vote at the convention of the Democratic organization of Rock County, the thirty-two delegates elected to represent the county at the state Democratic convention to be held in Milwaukee next Thursday, July 11, were instructed to cast their vote for H. A. Moehlenpah of Clinton as lieutenant-governor at the November election.

The convention was held out of doors in a shady part of the Court House park. County Chairman E. H. Connell presided over the meeting, at which about thirty-three delegates were present. After the meeting had been called to order it was decided upon motion to select thirty-two delegates to the state convention, in place of sixteen, giving each of the thirty-two men half a vote with the right of giving his proxy to whomsoever he chose, in case he could not attend, and where any delegates failed to appear or give their proxy, their vote should be cast by the delegation according to the wishes of the majority.

A committee of five, comprising J. J. Cunningham, Janesville, J. J. Leary, Edgerton, R. M. Richmond, Evansville, Frank Morris, Milton Junction, and H. A. Moehlenpah, Clinton, were named by the chairman to draw up a list of delegates to the state convention and present it before the county convention. On motion it was decided to include the five members of the committee as delegates. The committee presented a list of thirty names, the other two delegates, B. C. Wilson, Edgerton, and W. E. Carr, Janesville, being selected after the committee had made its report. The delegates selected are: George G. Sutherland, J. J. Cunningham, I. F. Connors, P. J. Mout, E. H. Connell, J. C. Nichols, J. E. Kennedy, George Croft, and W. E. Warr, Janesville.

Bort and Mr. Parnsworth, Beloit; Frank Morris, John Paul, and George B. Keith, Milton; Clark Palmer, Lima; R. M. Richmond, L. Van Wart and R. E. Smith, Evansville; George Nichols, Porter; Arthur Broughton, Magnolia.

Endorsement was given Chairman Connell in his candidacy for sheriff of Rock County, and a motion was adopted that at the next election of officers for the county organization Mr. Connell be elected.

John C. Nichols of his city was chosen as treasurer of the county organization to raise funds for the coming campaign and a motion to have the chairman appoint an executive committee of five to assist him in organizing the county was adopted. Chairman Connell reported funds amounting to about seven dollars on hand for the work.

ARRANGE ITINERARY FOR SUFFRAGE TOUR

County Will be Covered Thoroughly in Campaign of Political Equality League Next Week.

Announcement of the itinerary for the automobile campaign which will be made in the interests of woman suffrage by the members of the Rock County Political Equality League, has been made, and a busy week is planned. It has been arranged to make all the trips from Janesville leaving toward evening in order to escape the heat. Following is the schedule arranged:

Monday, July 8—Afton, 6:30 P. M. Beloit, 8 P. M.

Tuesday—Hanover, 4 P. M.; Orfordville, 6:45 P. M.; Footville, 8:15 P. M. Wednesday—Evansville, 4 P. M.; Edgerton, 7:30 P. M.

Thursday—Shopee, 7 P. M.; Clinton, 8:15 P. M.

Friday—Milton, 3 P. M.; Milton Junction, 4:30 P. M.; Lima Center, 7:30 P. M.

Miss Helen H. Grimm of Chicago, who will give the addresses on the tour, is a young woman in the twenties who has already won the title of the girl orator, will tour Rock County the second week in July and will be in Beloit.

Winning votes for women is the purpose of Miss Grimm's trip which is made under the auspices of the Political Equality League, and she will tour the county in an automobile decorated with banners and pennants which advertise the cause.

Miss Grimm is a graduate of the University of Chicago, and there won honors in forensics and dramatics. She has been kept so busy with organizations of women's clubs, speaking and lobbying for suffrage and for legislation for women and children, that she has not had time to continue her work in dramatics, which was her original plan. When the time comes that Harriet Grimm has helped every state in the union win votes for women, then she probably will be allowed to pursue her own inclination and return to her dramatic work. She is so charming and captivating a speaker that at present she is, in great demand.

Miss Grimm has spoken in Illinois, Ohio, South Dakota and Wisconsin on this question, and will be the speaker at a number of county fairs in the fall. She was the speaker of the morning on Fourth of July at the Kilbourne Chautauque, Columbia county.

LOCAL BOY SCOUTS RETURN FROM HIKE

Reached City at Three O'clock Yesterday Afternoon—Made Long Stop at Crystal Springs.

Full of enthusiasm over the first hike, the Janesville Boy Scouts reached home yesterday afternoon before four o'clock. Some of the boys suffered from blisters on their heels, caused by wearing new shoes, and walked most of the way barefoot, but excellent time was made. The Scouts left Edgerton at 6:15 o'clock in the morning and by 9:30 o'clock had reached Crystal Springs where they stayed until three o'clock, then resuming the march home.

Following the shower Thursday afternoon the Scouts marched from the race track grounds to their camp on the school grounds, supplying their own music with bugle and fife. The camp had been drenched and the grounds were wet, so camp was struck and all made ready for an early start the next morning. The night was spent in the basement of the high school building.

The Scouts were aroused at a quarter to five, and after reveille and breakfast returned the borrowed tents, cleaned up the grounds, and began their march. The road was much better than was anticipated, and better than the day before because of the absence of dust. The heat was also less oppressive. Dinner was prepared after the arrival at Crystal Springs, and the boys enjoyed a swim and rested until three. On their return to Janesville they were dismissed at the corner of Prospect and Bluff street, and the tents and horse were then taken back to their proper places. The Scouts met at three o'clock this afternoon for instruction in swimming.

SLASH BOARDS ARE PUT UP ON ELECTRIC COMPANY DAM.

Water in Rock River Has Fallen to Very Low Level and is Running Over Only Part of The Dam.

Slash boards were put up on the city dam of the Janesville Electric Company today as the river has fallen to such a low level that hardly any water is running over the dam and only a partial supply can be drawn by the turbines. The slash boards will raise the water about a foot and afford some relief.

Great White Elephant Season of Eighty-Six By D. W. WATT

Over in Siam the king is a semi sacred being and according to the popular traditions the white elephant is even more sacred and can only be owned by the king and used by royalty. In fact, the flag of this kingdom is the white elephant showing the sacredness of these wonderful beasts.

One of the rewards for the discovery of an elephant of the sacred color was that the native reporting the discovery received a reward of gold in the shape of all his mouth and ears could hold. Some of these natives usually stretched their mouths when the opportune time came. Another ruling of the country was that no sacred elephant could be sold or permitted to leave the kingdom and that is why the white elephant has always remained much of a myth except to eastern travelers.

In the circus world the season of Eighty-Six has become famous as the white elephant season. There were two big circuses in the United States at this time, and hundreds of small ones, but the P. T. Barnum show and the Adam Forepaugh show were the two premiers of this country. They were bitter rivals and fought it out on every occasion for patronage.

Barnum conceived the idea of a sacred white elephant as his star attraction for the season of '86. No sooner had he heard of this Forepaugh planned to have a similar attraction. The press of the country was filled with the announcements of the rival organizations and the arrival of the elephants were awaited with anxiety.

Whether either of the elephants were really from the sacred realms of Siam or not remains a mystery today, but it is whispered in some circles that Barnum's agent found a very pinkish skinned elephant in one of the European shows and bought it, heralding it as a white elephant, while the Forepaugh elephant was merely a light colored beast, whose coat had been scrubbed and washed carefully until whitened by artificial means. At any rate, in the words of P. T. Barnum, "It was easy to humbug the public and they liked it."

Usually the term "white elephant" means a burdensome article, and while the two shows waged a merry warfare during the season with their rival attractions, spending lots of money, they really made good with the public and paved the way for a better condition of affairs for the circuses of the future, if not for the public, by dividing the territory to be showed through.

Janesville was represented in this merry war by David W. Watt, who was with the Forepaugh show. He tells of the season in the following article which is one of a series he is writing for the entertainment of the readers of The Gazette during this season when the city seems doomed not to have any big circus attraction as a visitor.

Eighteen Eighty-six was made memorable the world over to show people as being the one which was known as the "white elephant" season. In those days each of the large shows, the Forepaugh and the Barnum, as soon as the season would close, would send a special agent to Europe to look after novelties for the next season.

Sam Watson, an English rider, for many years with the Forepaugh show, was European agent in winter, and Jim Davis was agent for the Barnum show and they would sail for Europe as soon as the show closed in the fall and would travel all over that country looking for novelties and animals for the coming season.

It was along about the middle of February, 1886, that Mr. Forepaugh heard that the Barnum agent had purchased a white elephant for the Barnum show. He immediately cabled his agent, Sam Watson, to make all haste and get the best white elephant possible and without fail to land it in New York ahead of the Barnum elephant.

This was done and about four days before the Barnum elephant landed, Forepaugh had one at Castle Garden. Forepaugh men were taken out in boats to meet the big steamer which had the sacred animal on board.

A big van with twenty horses was at the landing when the boat pulled in and the sacred animal was covered entirely up with large blankets, led into this van and taken across the city to Jersey City, where it was shipped to Philadelphia.

This heading off of the Barnum people made the trouble, which had existed between the two shows, worse than ever. Then the Barnum show planned to come over into Philadelphia and show for two weeks side by side with the Forepaugh people.

accumulated from all over the United States and always brought it home to Philadelphia and invested it in real estate in his home town.

This made Philadelphia naturally loyal to him and it was seen at the time that hundreds of people attended his show that had never been to a show before simply to show their loyalty.

Several times during the engagement there Mr. Forepaugh would send his ticket boxes out to the wagon about half past eight and tell me to look up everything and get in the carriage with him and we would go and take a look at the Barnum show, and the receipts for that two weeks of the Forepaugh show were the largest in his history.

After playing side by side on Broad street in Philadelphia both shows started for the west. All kinds of prices were asked for lots, billboards and newspaper work all along the line to Chicago, and while the white elephant was a good card for the season and the owners of the shows made a world of money it was not quite what the public expected to see.

At Springfield, Mass., about nine o'clock at night some one from the other side of the grounds fired three shots in quick succession at the Forepaugh white elephant, which created great excitement around the show for the balance of the evening. The elephant was not harmed and the newspapers all over the country picked it up and it certainly gave the white elephant a lot of notoriety.

We came almost directly northwest to Chicago where we opened for two weeks on State and 23d streets.

In the leaps over the elephants in Chicago the famous clown Billie Burke hit the spring board wrong and fell and broke his arm. He was sent to his home in Washington, D. C., and six weeks later came on and joined the show.

It was here that James A. Bailey of the Barnum show came on and he and Mr. Forepaugh got together and divided the country for the next five years.

The following year the Forepaugh show was to take the east country and the Barnum show the west, and change each year but long before this was done they had spent several small fortunes fighting each other for supremacy in the business, and many days with both shows afternoon and night, packed with people, to the ring bank where they should have made several thousand dollars clear, it was all paid out for extra expenses, but after dividing the country there was no opposition and expense in every department was very much less and this division of country lasted up to the time of Adam Forepaugh's death on January 25, 1890, after which the Barnum people bought the show.

This season we went as far west as Denver and here turned around and started the trip back toward the winter quarters. All through this season the receipts had been enormous, but the big expenses for most of the season in opposition had cut the profits, which should have been large, to less than other years when the receipts were much less. After this year the white elephant dropped out of the limelight and had to be content with being an ordinary elephant for the balance of his life.

When the show broke up this season there were twenty-nine elephants in the herd and a special tent was used for them alone during the season.

The latter part of this season we got a few of the better towns in Tennessee and Georgia, and finally closed the season at Rome, Georgia, about the middle of November, and then shipped home to the winter quarters in Philadelphia, and thus closed the memorable season of 1886, commonly known among show people as the "white elephant season."

WILL ESTABLISH VOTING BOOTHS IN SCHOOL HOUSES.

The Madison Board of Education has taken favorable action on the request of Mayor Hiett to establish the voting booths in the basements of school houses. The voting booths in the second, third and fourth wards will not be disturbed as they have been established in public buildings. In all of the other wards a room will be set aside in the basement of the schools for voting purposes.

The booths in the second, third and fourth wards are at the pumping station, police barn and basement of the courthouse, respectively.

Concrete for Main Street.
The common council of Menomonee is advertising for bids for paving its main street. Three forms of specifications are given, all providing for a concrete base and with different surfaces, but the form that is most in favor is a concrete foundation with a concrete wearing surface, the latter to consist of a mixture of cement and either granite screenings of fine native gravel.

Cresote Elocks for Monroe.
The common council of Monroe, at a recent meeting voted to have the city squares with cresote blocks and awarded a contract for paving with that material. Property owners were given the opportunity to name the kind of paving, but the only petition presented was for macadam, and only about 500 feet of the total of 1200 was represented on this petition.

CALCIUM CHLORIDE USED TO LAY DUST

City of Milwaukee to Make Comparative Tests of Chemical and Oil on Streets This Summer.

Commissioner of Public Works Fred G. Simmons of Milwaukee has decided to test calcium chloride as a dust preventative on some of the macadamized streets of the city and at the same time continue the use of oil on other macadamized streets, in order to determine the relative economy and efficiency of the different methods of dust prevention which are most in favor through the country.

Calcium chloride absorbs moisture from the atmosphere and deliquesces, thus "laying the dust," as effectively as does the sprinkling wagon ordinarily used on macadamized streets.

The Milwaukee county highway commission is inclined to favor the use of oil rather than calcium chloride as a dust preventative, for the reason that the oil gives more permanent effects. The chloride gives no permanent relief from dust and when the weather is intensely hot and everything is unusually dry, the very time when dust is most troublesome the salt is least effective. It draws moisture from the air and when there is no moisture to draw, naturally it does not keep down the dust as well. A heavy rain storm may come along just after it is applied and then the chloride is washed off and the application becomes labor wasted.

But while the county highway authorities favor oil, they qualify this statement by insisting that the oil must be properly applied and by this they mean applied to a clean surface.

"To be ready for oiling a street should have been swept clean of dust and then sprinkled to wash off the fine dust which might cling to the rock," said Highway Commissioner H. J. Kuelling, when asked about dust preventatives. "When the surface dries apply the oil. This, to give the best service, must have close contact with the rock. Then its effect will be more permanent and there will be no complaint about its tracking into buildings."

Oil Poorly Laid.
An example of the wrong way of applying oil is given by the new Chicago road in the town of Lake, where the local authorities and the street railway officials applied oil last fall, sprinkling it on top of the thick dust, for which that road has long been noted. As a result the oil laden dust has gone everywhere, ruining carpets and clothes and driving housewives frantic.

Complaint comes from Duluth of the chloride tracking into houses in the same way as improperly applied oil. No such complaints have arisen in Milwaukee where the chloride has been tried and besides the Blue Mound road it is in use on the drive ways in Forest Home cemetery.

In Forest Home the chloride is applied twice a season, but on roads which are in more general use the applications have to be renewed more frequently. This is especially true when there are heavy rain storms, followed by dry weather.

Cost is Equal.
In cost there does not seem to be any great difference between the oil and the chloride of calcium. C. A. Mullen, street commissioner of Milwaukee under the last administration, said: "The department 2 cents a square yard to oil the streets, the oil costing 3 cents a gallon. In England it is found that three pounds of calcium chloride per square yard a season will keep down the dust, three-quarters of a pound per square yard being put on at the first application and half a pound per square yard at each additional application every two months or when needed."

According to the cost of the calcium chloride purchased by Secretary Frank A. Cannon of the Citizen Business League in 1911, for the Kilbourn road, the three pounds a season per square yard cost 3 cents. The cost is therefore about the same with the two processes.

MUST NOT SELL DRINKS TO PERSONS PARTIALLY INTOXICATED IN OSHKOSH

Mayor John Mulva Declares That Practice Must Be Stopped or "He Will Know Reason Why."

"This selling of liquor to drunken men or men bordering upon intoxication must be stopped or I will know the reason why," the mayor declared recently made by Mayor John Mulva of Oshkosh. "I have instructed the chief of police," continued the city's chief executive, "to bring into court with every man arrested for drunkenness the saloonkeeper who sold him the liquor and to prosecute him for violating the law. That law must be obeyed and any saloonkeeper convicted of violating it will not only be required to pay the penalty, but will have his license revoked. Selling liquor to a drunken man is prohibited to the same extent as selling liquor to a minor and Oshkosh saloonkeepers may as well understand now that this law will be enforced."

It is only a few weeks ago that the Oshkosh Retail Liquor Dealers' association by a unanimous vote of its members adopted an agreement binding them to live up to a certain set of rules and regulations, one of which prohibited them from selling liquor to an intoxicated man.

HEALTH OF EMPLOYEES HURT BY ESCAPING SEWER GAS

Improper sewerage facilities menaced the health of the hundreds of employees at their factory, according to the officers of the Mitchell Lewis Motor company of Racine. In a communication to the council, filed with the city clerk they ask that the conditions be remedied.

The officers state that the water often backs up from the sewers during stormy weather, and flows over the floors of the factory, and that there have been instances where eight or ten men have been incapacitated from sewer gas at one time, it being necessary to send some of them to the hospital.

Reminiscences of Battle of Gettysburg By A. F. Lee

Forty-nine years ago the first of this week, July 1, 2 and 3, 1863, the greatest battle of the Civil War, the fight on the field of Gettysburg, took place, the rebels being turned back in their first and only invasion of Northern soil, when the Union forces, commanded by General Meade, met and defeated the Rebel army under General Lee. The battle was precipitated when Buford's cavalry, a part of Meade's army, accidentally came in contact with Heth's division of Hill's corps of the Southern army. Buford's cavalry were reinforced by Gen. John Reynolds's forces, and the big battle commenced.

A. F. Lee of this city, then a second lieutenant in the Second Regiment, Wisconsin Infantry, was with Rey-nold's troops at the time the battle started, and although not actively engaged at the time, was a witness of the famous charge made by Pickett on the third and most important day of the battle.

Regarding his experiences at the Battle of Gettysburg, Lieut. Lee told the following story:

"We were camped at White Creek, north of Gettysburg, the day before the battle, and the next morning, I was ordered to take a hundred men and reconnoiter. We were overtaken on the road by General John F. Reynolds, and ordered to follow them.

"Everything was quiet until we got to within thirty or forty rods from the Seminary. There was a seminary outside the town of Gettysburg—a theological seminary, I think it was, and as we came nearer the seminary, the skirmish between Buford's cavalry and the Rebels began. We fired up to a rail fence, tore it down, and advanced up the side of an incline. Reynolds was riding ahead of the regiment, and just as he reached the crest of the hill, he was shot down by a bullet from the Rebels on the other side of the hill. Then the regiment came up on the run, and swept right over the top of the hill. The Rebels on the other side, seemed to have formed a skirmish line, as they had stuck their flags up in the ground. When they saw us coming, their officers told them that we were state militia and we could hear them holler, 'State militia be damned, and Big Hats.' At that time we wore a large hat cocked on one side, with a shield on one side. They were a mighty nice lot, even if the Rebels did call us 'Big Hats' for wearing them.

"Well, we poured it right into the Rebels and they ran into a railroad cut where they surrendered and threw up their arms. As we passed out of the cut we could see another body of Rebels coming across the fields and we ran to meet them. Those in the railroad cut then turned and fired into our backs, but the Sixth Wisconsin came up and gave it to them in the ditch. Our whole brigade then swung across and met Archer's Rebel brigade and Archer surrendered. We had captured more men than were in our own brigade, and the Rebels soon noticed this and began to hang back, but old Archer fetched them up in quick style. By that time the Rebels were strung burg."

DOUBLY PROVEN.

Janesville Readers Can No Longer Doubt the Evidence.

This Janesville citizen testified long ago.

Told of quick relief—of lasting benefit.

The facts are now confirmed. Such testimony is complete—the evidence conclusive.

It forms convincing proof of merit.

Mrs. Elizabeth Johnson, 118 Terrace St., Janesville, Wis., says: "I was a sufferer from kidney trouble for ten or twelve years. My kidneys became sluggish and their failure to do their work properly caused me to become weak and helpless. The kidney secretions were very unnatural and often my joints were sore and swollen. I had almost given up hope of getting relief when I had the good fortune to hear of Doan's Kidney Pills. I got a supply at the People's Drug Co., and they soon restored my kidneys to a normal condition. I advise other kidney sufferers to try this remedy." (Statement given in August, 1908.)

CONFIRMED PROOF.

Mrs. Johnson was interviewed on September 23, 1910, and she added to the above: "I take pleasure in again recommending Doan's Kidney Pills and advising their use in all cases of kidney trouble. I am still free from kidney complaint and my back does not bother me to any extent." For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. CURIOUS BITS OF HISTORY

GEORGE CATLIN, PAINTER OF INDIANS.

By A. W. MACY.

The career of George Catlin, the American artist, is a good example of a life successfully devoted to a single object. He was born in Pennsylvania in 1796. He studied law, but had a decided taste for art. In early life he conceived the idea of executing a series of Indian paintings, in order to rescue from oblivion and save for future generations the various types and customs of the American aborigines. In 1832 he began traveling among the Indians, and for eight years he lived among the wild tribes of North and South America, studying their features, habits, customs, rites and ceremonies. He painted more than 800 portraits of Indians, from life, 470 of them full length. This unique and valuable collection of paintings is now owned by the U. S. government, and may be seen in the National Museum at Washington.

TRINITY'S ONLY BIBLE PROP A FORGERY.

Interpolated Parts Expunged In Revised Version Bible.

Pastor Russell, in Remarkable Discourse, Points Out That After All, the Spurious Words Really Make Nonsense—Directs Attention to the Scriptures.

PASTOR RUSSELL

Syracuse, N. Y., June 30.—In one of Pastor Russell's discourses here today he spoke from this text: "To us there is but one God, the Father, of whom are all things, and we in Him; and one Lord Jesus Christ, by whom are all things, and we by Him."—I Corinthians viii. 6.

Pastor Russell declared that for centuries Christians have been overlooking the real doctrine of the Trinity, set forth in the Bible, and have been perplexing their minds in an endeavor to believe and understand the mysterious theory of the creeds on the subject, which so persistently ignores the laws of mathematics, by declaring that three ones are one; or at times varying the declaration and asserting that one is three.

Any one questioning this fabulous statement, even to the extent of asking an explanation, was branded a heretic and assured that the matter is a mystery which cannot be understood, but that if denied the penalty would be eternal torture; and in numerous instances zealous persons had anticipated the torture by burning the inquirer at the stake, as, for instance, was done by our god brother John Calvin to Servetus.

Doctrine of Trinity Traced.

There is no unreasonable mystery connected with the doctrine of the Trinity as presented in the Bible, said Pastor Russell. On the contrary, it is very simple, very reasonable, and very honoring to God the Father, Jesus the Son, and to the Holy Spirit.

The Pastor traced the doctrine of the Trinity, as presented in the creeds, to its source. It was not the teachings of Jesus and the inspired Apostles, and surely not the belief of the Israelites, and those who for more than four thousand years had been God's people before Jesus' day. After the death of the Apostles, the Bishops erroneously claimed to be their successors vested with Apostolic authority, and these formulated the creeds with their various inconsistencies and Bible contradictions.

The Trinity of the creeds was introduced to offset the agnostic influences of the Greeks, who became interested in Christianity as a philosophy, but who denied its teachings respecting the prehuman existence of Jesus, the necessity for His death as a sin-atone-ment, and the doctrine of the resurrection.

In proportion as the Grecians denied many Christians would combat their theory, and they advanced claim after claim until they reached the climax represented in our creeds of declaring that Jesus was His own Father and His own Son at the same time, that one God, equal in power and glory, prayed to the other part of Himself with strong cryings and tears to be delivered from the power of the tomb, was heard and was raised from the dead by the power of the other part of Himself.

Indeed, said the Pastor, some have carried the matter so far as to claim that when Jesus died the world was for three days without a God, that He then raised Himself from the dead. Others, considering this an unreasonable view, claimed that Jesus never really died, but merely pretended to die—that all of the experiences of the cross were a mere farce, a pantomime, performed for the effect upon the people—that merely the body of Jesus died after crying, "My God, My God, why hast Thou forsaken Me?" and that the real Jesus, the real God, stepped out and watched the proceedings and con- vived at the deception, including the further deception respecting the resurrection from the dead.

All of this must be abominable to the Father. All Christians are perplexed with this man-made mystery. Now, as Bible students are waking and are studying the Bible, they find that its teachings are very different from that of the creeds, that it is very real, very logical, very beautiful, very harmonious.

Trinity Supported by Forgery.

Before we come to the examination of the Bible's testimony respecting the Trinity, I remind you that the word "trinity" does not occur in the English Bible from Genesis to Revelation, and that no passage approximating such teaching is found there, except one, and that one is an interpolation, as all scholars, including Trinitarians, admit. The Revised Version expunges the additions (evidently added about the seventh century), because they are not found in any manuscripts of earlier date.

The spurious passage is found in St. John's first Epistle, 5:7. Those sufficiently interested will read the passage in its proper form in the Revised Version, and we ask them to note that the additional words of the forgery really make nonsense, in that they tell us that the Father and the Son Excusable.

CARE IS NECESSARY IN CARRYING SPARE TIRES.

Often times motorists seem to think that no care is necessary in carrying spare tires, says a Michelin expert. Uncovered envelopes are tossed on roofs of limousines where sun and rain beat upon them. Unprotected tubes are thrown carelessly into tool boxes where they come in contact with sharp tools.

Needless to say, such practices are destructive. Strong light is very injurious to rubber. So likewise is heat. For these reasons, if no other, spares should be kept in cases.

Moisture and oil are also injurious to tires. Waterproof wrappers which keep out light, moisture and oil and at the same time protect spares from injury by contact with sharp substances, can be had of any accessory dealer. Every motorist should use them.

Cardboard boxes are never satisfactory for carrying tubes in a car. Every vibration of the car causes chafing between the box and tube and since cardboard is harder than rubber, the tubes will inevitably be injured. Covers for inner tubes should take the form of bags which will fit snugly around the tube.

MENOMONIE RECRUIT TO PLAY MOVEMENT

NORTHERN WISCONSIN CITY HAS EQUIPPED PLAYGROUNDS AND DIRECTOR

VOLUNTEERS ASSIST

One Playground to be Open Two Evenings a Week.—Progress Throughout the World.

Menomonie, Wisconsin, a city with not half the population of Janesville, on Monday of this week opened two playgrounds in charge of a trained director, W. F. Hanson. Both will be equipped with apparatus, which is now being repaired. Director Hanson has planned the list of appliances with no little care in order to get that which will be most serviceable to all concerned and still keep within the funds available. At the beginning it is intended to have four chair swings, four tector boards, two volley ball courts, two basket balls, two indoor baseballs and bats, four sand bins, eight by eight feet, two dozen bean bags, two spades and a rake and probably two croquet sets for the use of mothers who come with their children.

One of the prime purposes of public playgrounds everywhere is to teach children how to play, and Director Hanson is prepared to lead the youngsters in all manner of interesting games and sports. He says it is a mistake to assume that children know how to play properly without being taught, and feels confident the results will be surprising when the movement is well under way. A great variety of pastimes will be introduced, including some that will be interesting to youths of fifteen or sixteen years as well as the smaller children. All are welcome to come and see for themselves.

The director will give his time personally to the Wilson lot playground from 9:00 to 12:00 a. m., and will be at the East school from 2:00 to 5:00. It is expected that volunteer assistance will be utilized at both places as soon as necessary arrangements can be made. In addition to the hours mentioned, it is proposed to have the Wilson playground open with the director in attendance on two evenings a week from 7:00 to 9:00 o'clock for the benefit of children from North Menomonie.

Spreading the Movement.

Returning from a world-wide journey made in the interest of the extension to the children of all the world of the American supervised play system, Charles M. Goethe, commissioner of the state of California, on recreation, and a business man of Sacramento, has been in New York conferring with Secretary H. S. Braucher of the Playground and Recreation association of America.

"We are planning," said Mr. Goethe, "to duplicate for the whole world the work of the Playground and Recreation association of America. China is an example of the needs of the whole orient. Probably no one more realizes the tremendous development soon to be seen there. The overthrow of the Manchu dynasty is really the work of returned Chinese students from America and of men like Sun Yat Sen, the Washington of China, who says his work is the direct result of the influence of an American woman, wife of a missionary. China is to have a public school system based upon the American, and is strongly considering incorporating into it the evening school recreation center such as they have in New York. We hope through our new organization to have the new Chinese republic incorporate into their public school system a complete supervised playground, one on American lines. A conference was held at the office of Secretary Braucher of the playground association, which was attended by representatives of a number of organizations having stations abroad, to consider the report of the trip. As a result, plans are to be drafted for a committee which is to make available the condensed experience of American supervised play for foreign governments, national and municipal, universities and other similar institutions, and individuals.

Playground for Seoul. While those plans are being worked out, arrangements are being completed for the opening of the first demonstration playground in the orient at Seoul, the capital of Korea. The work will be partially supported by the people of Seoul. This will also be a training school for native supervisors—Japanese and Korean. A similar undertaking is to be commenced at Calcutta. A start has also been made at Manila, under a plan which is to cover the entire Philippines. Other work is planned for Europe and for Latin-America.

One of the Chief Ingredients. The self-made man has hardly ever neglected to begin by laying in a large supply of self-esteem.

Foley Kidney Pills are healing, strengthening and tonic, and contain no harmful or habit forming drugs. N. J. Gorman, Cashier Bank of Woodville, Woodville, Ga., recently had an acute attack of kidney trouble. "The pains in my back and kidneys were terrible, but I bought a bottle of Foley Kidney Pills and took them, and can truthfully say they have entirely relieved me. I find more benefit from them than from any other kidney medicine I have ever taken." Try them. Refuse any substitute. Badger Drug Co.

The Home Beautiful

DESIGN NO. 62

This is one of the very large and finely arranged Bungalows of our collection, one having so many individual features that it will attract attention from the first sight. It has that peculiar well balanced appearance so much desired by the Artist. Nothing lop sided or top heavy about it, but of such careful, quiet dignity of proportions that it is restful to the cultured eye and pleasing to a refined taste.

The Central Hall is entered through a sash door with side lights, and from this Hall, every room on the first floor is reached, the large Living Room and Library through double sliding doors and the Dining Room and kitchen through single doors. The Living Room is a daisy with its brick mantel and window-seats Solarium in the rear. The Library and Dining Room are of commodious area and so arranged that there is ample room for all necessary furniture. The Kitchen is possibly the most complete residence kitchen possible to make, with cupboards at each end and between the windows, while under the windows are the sink and work table, the latter having flour bin and drawers under, while the top being continuous provides a counter shelf for the cupboard between.

The first thing noticed on the second floor is the convenience of the Bath Room, at the head of the stairs, the large Chambers each with nook and seat, with dresser place between windows in each room, while each room has two or three places where the bed may be placed, thus making possible, the changing around of furniture, so dear to the heart of many women.

There is no scarcity of closets, each room being supplied with a large one, while a linen closet, with drawers below, and door above, is located in the hall.

The possibilities of elaboration of finish in this house is almost unlimited when we begin to work out panel wainscoting and plate rail in the Dining Room and book shelves in the library with such possibilities as present themselves in other parts of the house.

With Oak floors and Trim in D. R. Lib. L. R. and Solarium, with Yellow Pine throughout the remainder of the house, it will cost approximately $3400, width 39 ft., length 33 ft. Clip this page and save it.

MARY ELLEN'S WAY

She Secures a New Position for Mr. Mary Ellen

YOU certainly are not appreciated at your office," said Mary Ellen one night after dinner. "Blank hasn't half your brains, and yet look at the salary he gets and the easy hours he has."

"But what can a fellow do about it?" demanded Mr. Mary Ellen.

"If you ask for a raise, you only get turned down,"

Mary Ellen brooded silently a few minutes. "Never mind," she said.

"That's no remedy," replied Mr. Mary Ellen, reaching for his magazine.

A few days later, a friend introduced Mary Ellen to Brown, the president of a big corporation.

"I've heard my husband speak of you so much," she said sweetly as they exchanged greetings.

"Is that so?"

"Yes. He is a great admirer of yours. He says your methods are so up-to-date, and you have so much initiative."

"A fellow has to keep ahead of the others these days, you know."

"That's true. But my husband says you do it so cleverly. He says you never take unwise risks, and yet you are always on the winning side. It must be awfully hard. I should think it would be a terrible strain."

"Business is no easy proposition nowadays," said the head of the big corporation. "You've got to keep your eyes open."

"Yes," said Mary Ellen, gazing at him admiringly. "And you must have to know an awful lot, sort of keep yourself posted on everything connected with your business, and then have the judgment to sift it and decide the best course to adopt. My husband is constantly reading up and keeping posted on markets and what the other fellow is doing."

"He must be very valuable to his firm."

"Oh, he is," said Mary Ellen enthusiastically. "They all say he is the most alive man in the office. But he enjoys it, you know. He says that's the only way to work, if you want to get real satisfaction from it."

"What's his business?"

"The same as yours. That's the reason he's such an admirer of you."

"He's keeping his eye on me, is he?" laughed the head of the big corporation.

"I wouldn't mind having a man like him in my own employ."

"My!" said Mary Ellen drawing a long breath. "I think Mr. Mary Ellen would look upon being associated with you as the crowning ambition of his life."

The head of the big corporation looked thoughtful. "Do you know," he said, "I like a fellow who seems to have ideals and ambitions such as you say your husband has."

"My husband is a fine man," said Mary Ellen, her face glowing.

"I should like to meet him," responded the head of the big corporation.

"I'll introduce you," said Mary Ellen. "He'll be delighted to meet you. Of course, the firm, where he is, thinks an awful lot of him. But then I know what he has always thought about you—" Mary Ellen looked slightly troubled. "I wouldn't want, you know—"

"I understand," interrupted the head of the big corporation indulgently.

Mary Ellen's brow cleared. "I don't know much about business," she artlessly confessed. "I only know how Mr. Mary Ellen reads and studies and keeps himself posted about everything connected with his work and the other fellows in it."

"I should like to meet him," said the head of the big corporation.

"And I know he'll be very happy to meet you," said Mary Ellen, deep satisfaction in her tone.

really endless and if one has a food chopper the tiniest bits of meat may be minced, well seasoned and mixed with mustard or French dressing, and the most appetizing, tasty sandwiches be produced, as different from the bun and a bit of ham of the restaurant variety as can well be imagined.

Whole wheat, Boston brown and Graham bread make nice variations, but do not combine so well with meat fillings as cheese and lettuce, nuts and celery, jam or jelly fillings are often used, but many people do not like brown or graham bread sandwiches. In such cases cream the butter or warm it slightly and spread upon the bread smoothly, then cut from the loaf and wrap without any filling, and in a separate corner of the box place boiled chops, cold sliced meat, veal or salmon loaf.

A small glass with a closely-fitting lid is very convenient for holding hot beans, potato salad, cream cheese or any moist food.

With the bread and meat packed the fruit is the next most important thing to consider, and that which is in season is always the best. Bananas have the highest food value of all fruits, and are often found in the cold lunch collection, but they also have a penetrating odor that permeates all the rest of the food so they, too, should be rolled in the oiled paper.

The craving for sweets is a natural one in both big and little, and it should be satisfied by a square of sweet chocolate, a lump of maple sugar or a piece of home-made fudge. All these have real food value and help out many a lunchbox.

The relishes are important, too. Figs, olives, pickles in reasonable quantities, a deviled egg, celery hearts or radishes make well-balanced and attractive luncheons besides giving opportunity for the element of surprise that is so delightful to the tired worker.

Layer cake and pie, if well made, are not more inviting than other foods, but they do carry well and were well designed for the lunch basket. Also put in cookies, tarts, loaf cake and gingerbread.

After the lunch is all packed fill in the corners with nuts. They make "good red blood" and are too seldom found in the lunch box. Containing both proteins and fats, they are a complete food, richer than either rice or potatoes, and are usually well liked.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

IF STRAWBERRIES be not in season, buy them not at a great price. It is neither art nor courtesy to invite your friends to be "eating money," as the saying is. A guest should be led to think always that her meal tasted pleasantly, never that its cost was disagreeable.

PRACTICAL DESSERTS.

During the season of fruit, and for that matter, that is all the year round, fruit provides a dessert that is easy, usually inexpensive and decidedly wholesome. All fruit will not do in dessert making, so we like a variety of reasonably inexpensive dishes for everyday use.

There is a large variety of fritters and hot cakes that may be served with various sauces and are quickly and easily prepared. The fat kettle is carefully covered and set away and can be brought out to heat while the fritters are being prepared.

Apple Fritters.—Sift together one and a third cups of flour, two teaspoonsful of baking powder and half a teaspoonful of salt; beat an egg, add two-thirds of a cup of milk and mix all together, adding two sour apples cut in small pieces. Drop by spoonfuls in hot fat and fry a delicate brown. Roll in powdered sugar and serve with currant jelly sauce. The sauce is prepared by boiling together a cup of sugar and a third of a cup of water five minutes; add four tablespoonsful of currant jelly and when boiling hot the juice of a lemon; strain and serve. If a very nice sauce is desired, with a handful of candied cherries.

Baked Bananas (Porto Rice).—Put rather green bananas in the oven and bake until the skins burst; serve with butter.

Souffles are another form of dessert which may be varied in endless ways. When baking, a shallow pan should be used, as the weight of the mixture tends to break the cell walls. When the dish seems to be too shallow, line it with a band of buttered paper that stands up above the dish. Always set the pan into water to equalize the heat in baking.

Coffee Souffle.—Cook together three tablespoonsful each of butter and flour, then add a cup of black coffee. When thick add salt and a third of a cup of sugar; cool and add the beaten yolks of three eggs, and then add the beaten whites. Turn into buttered dish and bake until firm. Serve with whipped cream.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

HE WHO WILL NOT UNDERSTAND.

THERE are many people in this world who are naturally and unavoidably stupid; there are equally many, if not more, who are deliberately stupid.

That is the conclusion to which I have come after many experiences with people WHO WILL NOT UNDERSTAND. Surely you have met such people. Everyone has. But perhaps you do not at once recognize the classification. Let me introduce you to one or two divisions of this species.

In the first place, there are the people who try not to understand what you say. These usually belong to your own family or to that inner circle of friendship in which it is allowable to be disagreeable. Only in his relationship with his family, or his dearest friends, does this specimen of the species exhibit his unwillingness to understand things. Outside of this he is sufficiently quick and intelligent, which proves of course that his stupidity is the deliberate and not the avoidable kind. If, in a moment of absent-mindedness or hurry, you say just the opposite from what you mean, this type of person always picks you up and makes you correct yourself. Or if you speak out suddenly, and rather blindly about some topic which you have been mulling over in your mind, he pretends not to have the slightest notion what you are talking about. In both cases he could have known perfectly well what you meant if he had tried to know. But he didn't. On the contrary, he tried not to.

That is one example of the people who do not understand. Another division is that of the deliberately stupid folks who will not understand intentions. Perhaps a better description of this type is the people who are determined to misunderstand.

Suppose you and one of your friends have talked over the possibility of taking some little excursion together. No definite plans are made and the business is left in the air. It is as much her place as yours to take up the matter again. You are busy and do not refer to it. When you finally call your friend up you find that she is "hurt" because you did not want to go. In the bottom of her heart she knows just how things are, but she is determined to misunderstand and consequently you must spend a lot of energy and time soothing her injured feelings.

Or perhaps you are in town for a very brief stop and simply cannot find time to call on your friend. She knows of your visit and although she ought to know just how busy you are, she insists on misunderstanding your reason for not coming to see her.

There is hardly time enough in life to fully understand each other when we try our best. There is no time to be wasted in deliberate misunderstanding.

Let's be sure that we do not in any way belong to those WHO WILL NOT UNDERSTAND.

Heart and Home Problems

MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have been going with a young man, but he quit to go with another girl. He has thought for quite a while that he would like to go with her, but people told him she wasn't a very nice girl. Recently somebody talked him into the notion of going with her.

I don't like the girl very well myself, although I think it will do him good to go and learn from experience, that people sometimes know what they are talking about.

He is a very nice boy in every respect and is just nineteen.

When we quit he asked me if he might come back before long, as he did not think he would go with this other girl more than a few times, and providing I did not have other company, I would not promise him, but told him it would do no harm to ask me.

If he should ask me do you think I should let him come back?

You know, boys will be boys, and when they get a notion in their heads they can't get rid of it except by experience.

MISS GWEDOLIN G.

This boy does not seem to be of a very stable mind, and I don't think you are fond enough of him to worry much, because he has got to "have experience."

If you are not engaged to him he certainly has a right to go with other girls. If you are engaged to him, you are probably going to release him after knowing his temperament.

I hardly think you will want to take him back after he has had his "experience." You can be good friends with him without "keeping company."

This "keeping company" business is pernicious anyway. A girl is not definitely engaged, but her "company" monopolizes her and keeps off other men. Then, when he sees some other girl he thinks he might like better, it is an easy matter to transfer his affections and his society.

My advice to girls is: Don't keep company with any young man to whom you are not engaged, and if you are engaged to one who proves to be fickle in his regard, free him at once, for you'll never know a happy moment with him.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1)—Is buttermilk whey good for sunburn? (2)—What is a nice way for a girl of sixteen to make her hair? (3)—What can I do to keep my sister's beau from teasing me? I hate to be teased?

(4)—Is it proper for me to talk to a young married man every time I see him. I have known him about eight years. I know his wife is jealous of him.

(5) A young man goes by our house every day and just as he gets in hearing distance he sings or whistles. Is that a sign of wanting to flirt?

(6) I am a member of the M. E. church and want to join the Baptist. Do you think it is wrong to do so?

(7) Is it proper for a girl to go to the moving picture show with a young man the first time she meets him?

SCHOOL GIRL.

(1) Yes. (2) A couple of braids wound about the head; or two coils at the back of the head; ribbon bows where they are the most becoming, or a ribbon fillet. (3) Just laugh at him. (4) It will be kinder to the wife not to notice the young man any more than possible. Just greet him pleasantly, but briefly when you see him. (5) He probably just feels good and doesn't think about you at all. (6) Talk this over with your parents. (7) If he is a young man of good character I see no harm in it. Better ask your parents about it first.

As to Glee Clubs.

"Seeing that they're about the saddest things on earth," observes the philosopher of folly, "I've often wondered why 'glee clubs' were so denominated."—Cleveland Leader.

DIET AND HEALTH HINTS

By DR. T. J. ALLEN
Food Specialist

INCOMPATIBILITY OF FRUIT AND VEGETABLES.

The editor of "Life and Health" thinks that "in view of recent observations on the action of the stomach, some other explanation is needed for the incompatibility of fruits and vegetables" than that they require different lengths of time to digest in the stomach. Variation in time is only one of the causes of inharmonious foods upon which the theory of the monodiet is based. It has long been known that the food begins to pass out of the stomach when it is reduced to a certain degree, which is one of the inducements for thorough mastication, and that the stomach in the process of digestion apparently divides into compartments so that besides the mechanical reduction and the chemical action required to reduce the mass to chyme, there is a process of sorting, and it is reasonable to suppose that the less complicated the process of digestion is in every respect the less will be the vitality required for the work. Experience supports this in the treatment of the sick and in the training of athletes as well as in the consideration of the subject from the pathological side.

DINNER STORIES

Two o'clock A. M., and a fine, drizzling rain, the village constable eyed the suspicious loiterer. For half an hour had the shabby stranger paraded stealthily about the quiet road under the dripping trees.

At last the officer felt he must act. "Here, my man," he said, coming on the suspect unawares, "what are you doing loitering about here?"

"Nothing at all, officer," was the reply, which failed to appease the constable.

"Nothing—eh?" he asked sarcastically.

"Then why have you been hanging around here for the best part of an hour?"

"Nothing wrong, I assure you," said the stranger. "You see I sing."

Scotland contains a considerable number of well-preserved and imposing forests, cared for and protected for centuries. One of these forests contains more than 5,000 acres, with many trees more than three feet in diameter.

The Call of the Cuckoo.

Superstitious young women in some parts of the world are nervous when they hear the first cuckoo's call in the spring. For they believe that they will remain single as many years as the bird utters his call when they first hear him.

Doctors Indorse Newbro's

Herpicide For the Hair

When a doctor endorses a preparation it means more than an ordinary testimonial. His opinion is always that of the professional man devoted to the welfare of the people.

Dr. J. J. Boyd, Covington, Tenn., says: "I feel it my duty to write this for the benefit of those suffering from dandruff. In the average case, few applications of Newbro's Herpicide will remove all dandruff. It is advisable to continue its use for several weeks."

The words of J. B. Thompson, M. D., No. 2 Burrington Place, Cor. Hollis St., Boston, Mass., are not less enthusiastic: "I can only speak in praise of Newbro's Herpicide. It is all that is claimed and perhaps more. Herpicide not only cleanses the scalp but brightens the hair, gives it life and makes it soft."

Dr. T. A. Moore, Duncan, Ariz., writes of his experience: "My scalp was in places covered by patches of dry, scaly material and the itching was incessant. Since using Herpicide all these evils have disappeared and my hair is soft, smooth and growing. Hair has grown on spots before but thinly covered."

Newbro's Herpicide is the original remedy to kill the dandruff germ and stop falling hair. The terrible itching which goes with dandruff is allayed almost at once.

Newbro's Herpicide in 50c and $1.00 sizes is sold by all dealers who guarantee it to do all that is claimed. If you are not satisfied your money will be refunded.

Applications may be obtained at the leading barber shops. Be sure you get the genuine Herpicide. Send 10c in postage for sample and book to The Herpicide Co., Dept. R, Detroit, Mich.

HOUSEHOLD TALKS

by
Henrietta D. Grauel

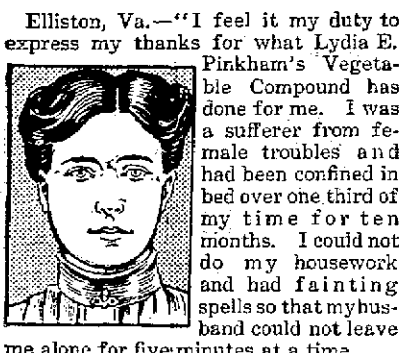

Thousands of persons must carry lunches, and many of them suffer from lack of adequate nourishment because their lunch basket, pail or box is packed with too much regard to accommodating the cook or the state of the larder and not enough attention to what constitutes a well-balanced luncheon.

Costly dainties do not always furnish sufficient nourishment, and many a mother would be scandalized if told the lunches she packed with such loving care were badly planned and that her little ones at school or her husband at work were ill fed. Each separate article should be wrapped in oiled or paraffin paper, and when all is packed the whole should be covered with a heavy napkin. These precautions are to prevent the different articles from tasting of one another and to exclude the air. This is a good rule to pack by, as the liquid is usually provided at school or in factory. Let us consider at once the most important part of the lunch—the bread or rolls. Fresh well-baked white bread, at least twenty-four hours old, is the best thing for the sandwiches that always have and always will furnish the basis of the cold lunch. The number of really delicious fillings one may make is

SHE SUFFERED TEN MONTHS

Mrs. Blankenship Tells of Her Restoration to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Elliston, Va.—“I feel it my duty to express my thanks for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I was a sufferer from female troubles and had been confined in bed over one third of my time for ten months. I could not do my housework and had fainting spells so that my husband could not leave me alone for five minutes at a time.

“Now I have been restored to health and it has come from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Whenever I see a suffering woman I want to tell her what this medicine has done for me and I will always speak a good word for it.”—Mrs. ROBERT BLANKENSHIP, Elliston, Va., Montgomery Co.

Was Helpless—Now Well. Trenton, Mo.—“About two years ago I had female trouble and inflammation so bad that I was literally helpless and had to be tended like a baby. I could not move my body or lift my foot for such severe pains that I had to scream. I was very nervous and had a weakness.

“Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped me to such an extent that I think there is no medicine like it for female troubles. I am up and able to do my work again and I give you full permission to publish my letter for the sake of other suffering women.”—Mrs. W. T. PURNELL, 320-10th St., Trenton, Mo.

Sparrow Travels 3,000 Miles. The most interesting traveler that came to port yesterday was a perky English sparrow that flew aboard the steamship Austrian Prince in New-castle, England, and made the 3,000-mile voyage to this country in the rigging. Captain Davies said the bird flew down to the deck for its food and at night perched on the girders of the stokehole, where it was warm.

HINTS FOR CAMPERS ARE SEASONABLE NOW

WHAT TO TAKE AND WHAT NOT TO TAKE MOST IMPORTANT ITEM.

SOME IDEAS TO FOLLOW

Ideal Vacation Outing at Moderate Cost is Available for Almost Every Resident of Janesville.

With the Boy Scouts hiking to Edgerton and planning a permanent summer camp somewhere in the vicinity of Janesville, the cottages up the river becoming a colony all of their own, the question of an outing for the average family of small means is a problem. Camping out has always appealed to the average person as a luxury and a delight and it is safe to say that many a pleasant experience could be related by some of the older and more experienced campers when they were not so many cottages, and motor boats were unknown.

Janesville and the immediate vicinity offer inducements for those inclined for an outing of this kind that is not found in every inland city. The river offers untold opportunity for suitable camp grounds and the many springs to be found along its banks mean a good supply of drinking water close at hand, a most important item in a camp selection. True the country is not wild as many would prefer, nor fishing as good as it might be, but still there is enough wilderness and the approach of civilization means fresh milk and butter and eggs when camp provender goes low.

However if a trip further away is contemplated there are many spots within easy distance by train where almost primeval conditions exist. In an old campers note book the following suggestions are taken and it might be well to copy them if you contemplate a camping trip.

Going camping this vacation? If so, here is a good platform to adopt in this summer season of presidential platforms.

We will go light. We will take what we need rather than what we want. We will be self-reliant. We will use our brains. We will study wood craft.

We will not shirk; we will not skulk; we will do our part of the camp work; we will be real sports and meet discomforts with cheerfulness.

We will keep the camp clean and leave the spot as sanitary as we found it, burning all rubbish and garbage.

We will not be a market-hunter or a game hog but only take what we need from forest, field and stream.

We will use light fishing tackle and give the fish a fighting chance. We will throw back the small fish and obey all game laws.

We will only take the needful of the forest to keep the camp-fire and to build our camp. We will not waste of the abundance of the forest.

We will set no forest fires. Matches will be handled with care.

We will relax and study nature at our homes better men and women.

With the above platform in view it is safe to say that a camping party will come back to the "maddening crowd" cheered and benefited by a few weeks, outing. The very first condition toward a happy camp is a congenial crowd. If one can not attach himself to such a party better go it alone as camping tires out the best and worst of us. If you have a yellow streak in you, or are affected with the hookworm do not go camping with a party. You are liable to come back with fewer friends than when you went into camp.

A happy camp is an orderly one where everyone cheerfully shoulders his share of the labor. Of course everyone wants to loaf some of the time, but if everyone loafed all the time it would indeed be a sorry camp. A camp should be elevated enough for good drainage in case of rainy weather and within reach of good drinking water and wood for the campfire. The sun should shine directly on the tent for a portion of each day to insure freedom from dampness. Blankets and spare clothing should be aired in the sunlight every day for the same reason.

Every day with flies is an abomination, so do your cooking and eat your meals away from the sleeping tent. Either bury or burn all garbage. In other words be as clean as you would be in your own home. It may be romantic to eat and sleep on the ground but it is a heap sight more comfortable to have beds and tables. A table can be made by driving four stakes into the ground and covering the top with sticks or bark or boards.

A bed can be made the same or a pile of dry twigs and light branches on the ground covered with a rubber blanket makes a comfortable bed.

Travel with as few dishes as possible on account of making dish washing burden. Paper plates are a boon to campers. If you are near a spring food can be kept cool and fresh by an improvised spring house. Outside dig a hole in the ground, line with paper or oil cloth—a handy twig to take on a camping trip—and cover with a top dressing of moss and soil. Bacon and hams may be covered with paper and hung high up in a tree for safe keeping leaving a rope fastened to the end of the branch to pull your handy pantry shelf down when you need a slice of meat.

A few candles are convenient to give light and build fires when the wood is damp—a few bits of candle set blazing beneath a criss-crossed mound of twigs will soon get a good blaze. A part of the fun of camping is in looking for wood and sometimes a bit of hard green wood will serve the purpose much better than dry soft wood.

Company stores is the rule in camp but everyone should have his own kit including clothes, bedding, a few simple remedies and toilet accessories. As for clothes, he who is satisfied with any old thing too shabby to wear at home is easily fitted out. But if one would go in fancy camp style, then an outfit can be obtained from a store dealing in camping attire, only beware the corduroy suit of a cheap grade for it is a snare and a delusion. It soaks water like a sponge and its beauty is as fleeting as a maiden's blush. Khaki is preferable. A woman going camping must expect to rough it, and white shirt waists and blouses are a nuisance in camp. Besides, outing clothes for women are very becoming if made right. Of course take enough clothing to keep comfortable and to guard against the damp and the rain storms. A sweater is a useful garment for man or woman in camp. An almost indispensable article is a good supply of surgeon's plaster. Here are a few of the things for which it can be used: to patch a leaking canoe or tent or rain coat, to pull together the edges of a cut, to bandage a sprained joint, or to bind splints on a broken limb until a surgeon can be seen, to protect a blistered foot or a burned hand, it can even be used to stop up a hole in a can of condensed milk and thus exclude the air. Two other requisites in camp are an ax, a real one, not a folding affair, and a waterproof match safe. A camp without matches is a forlorn affair. Rubbing two sticks together to get fire sounds all right but it is some troublesome to put into practice. However, if you should get caught without a match, and heaven, where they are said to be made, a long way off, just try shooting into a nest of dry papers. You may succeed in kindling them and again you may not, but it is worth trying for the odd chance. A campfire may be kept alive by covering with ashes or green bark. In very windy weather a trench should be dug for the fire and the coals carefully covered at night. If possible always have a real campfire around which to sit and sing or relate adventures at night.

Fishing affords a vast part of the amusement of most camps. Rods should be hung up when not in use to prevent anyone from stepping on setting on an unprotected hook. If fish forms any part of the camp food great care should be taken to guard against ptomaine poisoning. A fish box where the fish can be kept alive until wanted for a meal is the best method of preserving them fresh. If necessary, kill, bleed and clean the fish at once and salt to transport to a distant camp.

But after all your plans are matured and your kit packed stow away an extra supply of good nature, hope and sunshine for you will need it in the ordinary camp composed of the ordinary people. When a camping party is being organized a good slogan is "Grouches need not apply."

SIDEWALK SKETCHES.

PATRIOTISM. By Howard L. Rann.

Patriotism is a substitute for coast defenses which prevents a foreign nation from starting anything which it is unable to finish. It is a very useful emotion in time of war, as it supplies raw recruits faster than they can be taught the use of the canteen.

There is just as much patriotism manufactured in this country today as there ever was, but it hasn't any outlook except on the glorious Fourth and occasions when the pinch hitter delivers a delirious swat with the bases full. The first brand of old-fashioned, eight-ply American patriotism was put on the market at the battle of Lexington and was used with so much success during the ensuing six years that everybody was perfectly satisfied with the results. In 1812 England decided to see if we were still stocked up, but retired soon after in a highly rumpled condition. As time went on the American people kept accumulating more patriotism, and in 1861 all of it was put into action except a supply which the copperheads reserved for mass meetings and remarks about Abe Lincoln. In 1898 Spain matched her patriotism against ours, and after being blown out of Cuba in a very talented manner by Admiral Cervera withdrew to draw up one of the coolest apologies in history. Japan has one of the stiffest brands of inflammable patriotism ever introduced in any tongue, and by the time she was through spraying the Russian bear with samples of it that ferocious animal had become as docile as the defendant at a church trial. There is plenty of patriotism in this country that is willing to shed a little alien blood in the cause of freedom, but what is needed is the kind which will induce the voting males to leave the corn fields on primary day. There would be more shotless citizens in the United States senate if the common people would inhale enough patriotism to carry them to the polls in a resentful mood. The kind of patriotism which never gets further than singing "America" through the nasal cavities, and carrying a torch in the parade won't cause any of the crooks in the general assembly to perspire or reform. If red-blooded patriotism stood at every man's elbow when he entered the voting booth, this country would get the kind of a housecleaning that is coming to it.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, July 6, 1872—Blow for Blow.—The Union House was the scene of a row on the Fourth of July, between a German and a Norwegian, in which one of the parties let a little daylight into his antagonist's head with a stone, and in return received the weight of a board across the neck so forcibly that he didn't get up for several minutes. The man with a hole in his head then fled, pursued by some officials, but he escaped by swimming the race.

Injured by a Runaway Team.—F. P. Schicker, our Main street baker, was run over by his team last night and considerably injured, his nose being broken and his ankle badly sprained and his limbs marked by flesh wounds. Mr. Schicker had driven his team and wagon to the stable and was unhitching the horses when the accident occurred. Unfastening the neckyoke first he left the pole fall upon the ground. The wagon moved forward a little struck the horses' heels, which frightened them and they began to kick and plunge. Mr. Schicker held up the bits as long as possible, but his hold was finally released, he being thrown upon the ground and the horses and wagon passed over him. The wagon and harness were badly broken before the horses were stopped.

I hadn't a bundle then; I herded with homeless men, and padded the highway dust; and care was a thing unknown, as scarce as the silver bone, in days of the wanderlust. But now I am settled down, respectable till it hurts; and I have a bundle fat, and I have a stovepipe hat, and all kinds of scrambled shirts. I puff at a rich cigar, and ride in a motor car, and I have a spacious lawn;
